Additional information: This is a most unusual, contemporary woman's sandal. It has a 4" wedge that is created by two pieces of wood separated by 2" ball of wood covered in thin rings of rattan. A decorative rattan braid covers the upper and lower edges of the sole. The bottom sole is an inch thick and has a thin layer of textured rubber glued to it. The upper consists of a woven footbed and a woven vamp across the top of the foot only. The material used for the footbed and vamp weaving appears to be strips of bamboo that has been varnished to finish it. The vamp is lined in smooth leather and edged in suede.
